Box 1

Correspondence, 1840-19361840-1850

(Part A, Folders 1-2)

This subseries contains correspondence from Albert Brisbane to Nicholas Biddle, John S. Dwight, and an unknown recipient. These letters include discussions of Fourierism and socialism, as well as Brisbane's hopes to create a monthly magazine with Dwight concerning those philosophies.

1867-1869

(Part A, Folders 3-5)

This subseries contains a number of letters exchanged between Albert Brisbane and E. P. Grant, and many of the letters and handwritten transcripts created by Grant of articles written by Brisbane. These articles include "What Constitutes Harmony?", "Functions of Man," "Universal Laws: Statistical and Dynamical," "Methods of Study," "Mode of Using the Method," "Plan of the Transitional Organization of Industry," "Organization," "Laws," "What Laws Are and Their Sources," "Organization of Labor," and "Law of the Series Applied to the Capital Stock of an Association Supposed to be Divided into Shares of $50 Each." All of the above were sent directly to E. P. Grant, except "Plan of the Transitional Organization of Industry," which was sent to T. C. Durant. This subseries also includes other, shorter letters exchanged between Brisbane and Grant.

1870-1877

(Part A, Folders 6-11)

This subseries contains letters written by Albert Brisbane to his wife, Redelia Brisbane, dating from September 1872 to November 1877. It also contains a letter written to an unknown recipient on February 27, 1872, detailing Brisbane's thoughts on the development of the human race.

1880-1885

(Part A, Folders 12-18)

This subseries primarily contains letters from Albert Brisbane to Redelia Brisbane, dating from January 16, 1880 to August 23, 1885, and these letters include the following articles: "Heads of Method," "Means of Acquiring Knowledge Which the Mind Creates for Itself," "Method," "Huxly on Method," "The Laws Underlying and Governing the Phenomena of the Inorganic and Organic Cosmos," "The Sun," "Stages of Mental Evaluation," "An Integral Theory of Geology," "Hypothese sur l'existence d'un force centrifuge," and "Nutrition." There are also three letters from Albert Brisbane to unknown recipients, as well as one letter written by James Mooney to George Brisbane (Albert's brother), dated November 13, 1884.

1886-1889

(Part A, Folders 19-22)

This subseries includes letters written by Albert Brisbane to his wife Redelia and son Arthur, dating from April 25, 1886 to September 18, 1889. One letter to Arthur, penned on November 3, 1886, is co-authored by Albert Brisbane's daughter, Alice. There is also one letter from Charles L. Dobson to Arthur Brisbane, dated December 22, 1886.

Boxes 1 and 2

Undated Correspondence

(Part A, Folders 23-25 in Box 1 and Part A, Folders 26-29 in Box 2)

This subseries contains undated letters written by Albert Brisbane to a variety of recipients, most of which are thought to have been written in the 1870s and 1880s. These recipients include James A. Garfield, Redelia Brisbane, and Arthur Brisbane. There is also a letter written to a woman named Helen on the topic of utopian free love. Other topics include finances, religion, philosophy, and Brisbane's inventions. There are also several letters written by Redelia Brisbane to Albert Brisbane.

Box 2

Miscellaneous Fragments

(Part A, Folders 30-31)

This subseries contains originals and transcripts of miscellaneous fragments of Albert Brisbane's letters. The transcripts were prepared by Redelia Brisbane.

Correspondence of Redelia Brisbane

(Part A, Folder 34)

This subseries contains correspondence written to Redelia Brisbane, dating from 1890 to 1936. Correspondents include Charles L. Dobson, G. P. Putnam's sons, B. O. Flower, A. Fuibrand, Theodore Tilton, H. A. Powell, B. W. Willet, Edward P. Bates, Edwin Markham, Ruth Fesler, Winfield Shiras, P. H. Butler, Arthur Brisbane, George E. O'Dell, Upton Sinclair, Harold D. Carew, and E. A. Lundquist. There is also one letter written by Redelia to someone named Lillie in 1904, and a letter written by Henry L. Stimson to the American Diplomatic and Consular Officers in 1931 to introduce Redelia, as she intended to travel abroad.

Correspondence of Arthur Brisbane

Lodoiska M. Brisbane v. Albert Brisbane, 1883-1885

This series contains documentation of the divorce proceedings between Lodoiska M. Durand and Albert Brisbane, dating from 1883 to 1885. The pair had carried on a relationship since the 1840s and Lodoiska had been ruled Brisbane's common law wife in that period. Lodoiska never formally filed for a dissolution of that common law marriage, causing questions about the legality of both their marriage and Albert Brisbane's later marriage to Redelia Bates. Case documents show that Brisbane left the state of New York and did not pay the alimony ordered in June 1883, and the case was appealed repeatedly. The courts ultimately found in Lodoiska's favor and required Brisbane to pay the alimony. Many of the documents below are certified copies of the original legal documents, including court orders, summons, affidavits, and appeals.

Transcripts of New York Tribune Articles, 1842-1843
(Part D, Folders 1-26)

This series contains typed transcripts of Albert Brisbane's newspaper column "Association; or, Principles of a True Organization of Society." The column was printed on the front page of Horace Greeley's New York Tribune and spread knowledge of the principles of Fourierism to a wider audience in the United States, contributing to a rise in the number of Fourierist phalanxes in the United States through the 1840s. The column also highlighted Fourierist meetings and public events in New York City.
